Thailand e-Visa — Nepali Citizens

We handle your visa application, start to finish

Who decides your visa

Your Thailand tourist visa is granted solely by the Royal Thai Embassy, Kathmandu — not by us, and not by any agent. We prepare and file the application correctly and track it to a decision, but the approval, the refusal and the timeline are the Embassy's alone. No agency can guarantee a visa, and you should treat anyone who promises one with suspicion.

Nepali passport holders do require a visa for tourism — Thailand offers Nepali citizens neither visa-on-arrival nor visa-free entry. Since 1 January 2025 every Nepali and foreign national applying for a Thai visa in Nepal must apply online through the official Thai e-Visa portal, thaievisa.go.th. We file yours as a Tourist Visa “TR”.

Documents required — Tourist Visa “TR”

- Passport or travel document valid not less than 6 months prior to departure, plus a copy.
- Completed Thai e-Visa application, filed online at thaievisa.go.th — we complete this for you.
- Three recent passport-sized photographs.
- Evidence of adequate finance — an updated 6-month bank statement showing a minimum balance of THB 20,000 (approx. NPR 80,000) per person, or THB 40,000 (approx. NPR 160,000) per family.
- Confirmed accommodation under the applicant's own name for the full intended stay — provided as part of your tour booking.
- Travel itinerary — a detailed plan of your trip in Thailand, provided with your tour package.
- Copy of a confirmed airline ticket showing both arrival in and departure from Thailand.
- Proof of residence in Nepal — required only for non-Nepali passport holders.
- Visa fee.

Process, working hours and timeline

- Apply online at thaievisa.go.th. This is mandatory — walk-in applications are not accepted.
- Embassy working days: Monday to Friday, 08:30–12:30 and 13:30–16:30 hrs, except public holidays. The Embassy is closed Saturday and Sunday.
- Where in-person document submission is required, the visa counter operates 09:00–11:30 hrs on the Embassy's working days only — a two-and-a-half hour window, so plan the day around it.
- The Embassy observes both Nepali and Thai public holidays. Plan around Dashain, Tihar and Songkran in particular — these close the Embassy for several days at a stretch.
- Timeline: apply at least one month before departure, and not more than three months before. Application volume is high and the Embassy does not expedite for tour bookings.
- Approval arrives by email. Print the confirmation and carry it with your passport — you may be asked for it at check-in and at immigration.
- Thailand Digital Arrival Card (TDAC): a separate, free online arrival registration at tdac.immigration.go.th, mandatory for every traveller and completed within 72 hours of arrival. This is not the visa. We remind you and help with it closer to your travel date.

Visa validity: single-entry, valid 3 months from date of issuance, permitting a stay of not more than 60 days per visit. Visa fees are set by the Royal Thai Embassy, may change without prior notice, and are non-refundable under any circumstances — including refusal. The Embassy may update its requirements at any time; we always apply using the checklist current on the day we file.

Travel insurance — short but important

Travel insurance is not required for a Thai tourist visa, and it is not included in this package. We still recommend it, for one plain reason: medical care in Thailand is good and it is not free. A private hospital admission in Bangkok or Phuket runs into lakhs of rupees, payable by you, up front. Insurance is what stands between a bad week and a bad year.

A basic policy typically covers emergency medical treatment and hospitalisation, medical evacuation home if you are seriously hurt, cancellation or cut-short of the trip for covered reasons, lost baggage and documents, and personal liability. It matters most on the days you are least in control — a speedboat transfer to Coral Island, a scooter in Patong, a fall on wet steps, food that disagrees with you 3,000 km from home. Buy it before you leave Nepal; a policy cannot be bought once the trip has begun. We are happy to point you to a Nepali insurer if you would like.
